

A Vision For The Future

"Great leadership means taking action today in order to create a better tomorrow.

It's like planting a tree. The results may not be fully realized in our lifetime, but we know the potential and that we're planting the seeds of growth.

One of the fundamentals of leadership is the growth and development of people. And so my vision for the future of the Arctic begins today – by inspiring our young people to dream more, learn more, do more and become more. By teaching them to serve people with selflessness and sacrifice, and to put the common good of our region above personal success."
